Quiet Voices Mary Ellen Malague, The Quiet Hour Club of Metuchen

Over one hundred women have been proud members of the Quiet Hour of Metuchen, New Jersey, since Hester Poole called eight women to a meeting in 1895. Founded as a study club of current issues and literature, the club has continued in that tradition with each member preparing and reading a research paper on the chosen theme of the year.

To celebrate the century, club members decided to record some recollections of personal events that had meaning in their lives and captured some moments and moods of the twentieth century. This collection of letters will recall experiences that are unique to each writer but also common to women whose childhoods spanned years of the first half of the century and their mature lives the second half.

Marla Fiske:

As a college student exactly feel bored in order to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library or make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just small students that has reading's spirit or real their interest. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring and also can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this period of time, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Quiet Voices can make you truly feel more interested to read.
