This document describes the organization of the Adobe Type 1 font format and how to create a Type 1 font program. A Type 1 font program is actually a special case of a PostScript® language program. The PostScript interpreter renders the font intelligently, in a device-independent manner. This allows a font developer to create one font program that can be rendered on a wide variety of devices and at many different resolutions. • A Type 1 font program consists of a clear text (ASCII) portion, and an encoded and encrypted portion. • The PostScript language commands used in a Type 1 font program must conform to a much stricter syntax than do "normal" PostScript language programs. • Type 1 font programs can include special "hints" that make their representation as exact as possible on a wide variety of devices and pixel densities. This document explains the required contents of the clear and encrypted portions of a Type 1 font program, reveals the font encryption and decryption algorithms, provides syntax information, and explains how to declare hints when creating Type 1 font programs.
